Miraculous Escape of a Hunter from Starvation.

"Tecomseh" Tells of His Woes While Hunting Deer.

AERIAL FLIGHT OF HIS DOG.

Then, Bollingbroke, as low as thy heart, Through the false passage of thy throat, thou liest.

We are no story writer, but since "Uncle Allen" and others have written some very interesting ones, we hope that our feeble effort may so inspire them that they will again come to the front with one of their fables.

It was December, 1894, the snow had fallen to a depth of five or six inches, and the length of time which it had laid on the ground afforded a nice time for hunting and trapping.

I collected about me a number of dogs, traps and other apparatus preparatory for a protracted hunt of two weeks. Everything being ready I started on or near the 15th for the headwaters of Red river. It had been rumored that there could be occasionally found a deer, and all kinds of smaller game was plentiful. After a little more than a half day's ride I arrived at my destination, selected a suitable place to strike camp in the center of a dense forest containing about 100 square miles. I spent one day building a shanty and storing away my provisions and other necessities which I had carried with me.

Two days having passed, and the weather having moderated to a great extent, I resolved to start out early on the morning of the third day and try my luck. I am not one of those old-time hunters, accustomed to all the hardships incidental to the chase, nor was I in the least superstitious about my gun and dogs, for I had, during my pedagogical days, publicly denounced the black art to both young and old as being foolishness and abominable in the sight of God to entertain such thoughts. So I thought my success as a hunter of the latter days of the 19th century depended wholly upon my own exertions, with all the painstaking possible, when I fired my trusty rifle. I could depend on this gun to bring a squirrel from a tree at a distance of 100 yards. I had a pack of dogs that could not be equalled for their excellency in the chase, they having picked up several red foxes on previous occasions.

My entire hunting apparatus which I arranged to carry with me were my gun, ammunition bag, a small hatchet, horn and a butcher knife. With these swung about my person, I gave several long and loud sounds from my horn to inspire the confidence of my dogs for my purpose in view. I put off in the direction of the headwaters of the creek on which I had erected my shanty. After several hours of fruitless search, except a squirrel or rabbit, which I would shoot only for pastime, I had grown very much fatigued, and was harboring the thought of returning home the next day, when I heard my dogs running in the distance.

Inspired by their unerring sound I proceeded as rapidly as possible in the direction of the sound, but to my amazement the sound grew fainter and fainter. At times I flattered myself by the thought that they had turned and were coming toward me, but that was only when they would pass over the high knobs, then the sound would be out in the distance again. Not being accustomed to the range of hills, I thought it useless to attempt to follow them any further, except to a point where they had passed. By this I knew that if the sound did not reach me too much, I would be running. So, on I went, across deep hollows and high knobs until I was almost breathless, but I could not give up, except to throw myself down on a log for a few minutes for a little rest.

Hours seemed to have passed in my effort to find their footprints in the snow at the nearest point, until I was completely overcome by tired limbs and an empty stomach. I concluded that I would rest, eat a lunch which I had put in my ammunition bag, and return to the shanty, and whatever my dogs were running they could take over the Cumberland, climb a tree or take a hole, and I would go to Texas or somewhere else, where I could ride a pony.

While enjoying my lunch, seated on a large stone in a narrow pass between two high knobs, I unconsciously fell asleep, it then being the middle of the afternoon. I never awoke until the shades of night had hovered around me. After I recovered from the shock of my situation, I began to devise for myself the proper steps I could take for the night. I was, in my judgment, about six or seven miles from my shanty, and I realized the uncertainty of retracing my steps amid the darkness of the night; while on the other hand I considered the danger of remaining there until day dawned again; not that I was afraid of any ferocious animals, but of the possibility of contracting disease from exposure, for even then the wind was blowing a cutting blast and roaring in the tree tops above my head. I could see a mass of dark, threatening clouds that promised a storm of snow before midnight. Then again should I attempt to stay and more snow should fall, I would not be able to retrace my steps on the following morning. My dogs had not returned, and the sound of my horn would die out on the distant hills. No return could I hear from old Rover, who would always answer me by howling when in hearing. Again and again did I blow, but the only sound that came back was that of an owl in the distant hills.

Discouraged in my effort to call up my dogs, I resolved to arrive at some immediate conclusion, for the night was growing cold and the mass of clouds had spread across the sky so as to eclipse the stars, the only means of light, for there was no moon. At last I determined on a move toward the shanty, for in the event that should I stay out all night, it would be better to be traveling farther than to sit still and be a frozen corpse on the following morning. So off I started down the same hill which I had ascended, crossing deep hollows, tumbling over rocks, climbing steep declivities and wrestling with the thick underbrush and logs which were in my route, until I reached a creek, which I supposed to be the one on which I had built my shanty; so I intended to follow this and watch carefully on the right bank for the shanty. As I was moving hurriedly along I was startled on hearing a clap of thunder. Had I fallen over a cliff? Had there come an earthquake, or the winding up of creation? I could not tell whether I was among the living or dead until the sun had reached a point overhead that sent an awakening beam down and aroused my sleeping soul.

This sudden and unexpected transition had rendered me unconscious for 12 hours. [I will state that I believe had the day been a cloudy one, and the sun had not sent an awakening beam of light, I would never have awoke.] But I awoke only to find myself buried alive away down in the earth. I could see daylight only at one point above me, and the welcome beam had departed. I struck a match with the faint hope of seeing a new avenue by which to ascend, but to my mortification only a mass of hollow earth opened out above my head. I gave up in despair and wept aloud over the awfulness of my situation. I knew that death was inevitable in a very short time, and becoming desperate, I thought of putting an end to my existence by blowing out my brains with my rifle, which I held tightly in my grasp when I descended. All the tortures a criminal ever felt while locked and bound in his cell awaiting the day of his execution, were mine.

I fell asleep, and when I awoke again to my great surprise old Rover was in there with me—poor old dog, never deserting me—nor did he on this occasion. He had returned from the chase and followed the track of his master. Whether by accident he fell in, or whether he leaped in to be with his master, I shall never be able to ascertain; but, poor fellow, my conscience will always censure me for the manner in which I treated him. I could think of but one possible means of escape, and that was a very faint as well as a wicked one. Realizing that it was only a life and death struggle, I resolved to carry out my plans. So I took my horn of powder and ten dynamite sticks which I arranged together in the crown of my hat and sunk them in a hole which I dug out with my hatchet. To this I arranged a fuse. Over this mass of explosive material I placed a large flat rock which I found in one corner of the chamber. Then I took from my pocket my note book and penciled the following message:

DEAR BROTHER—Come to me quick, for I am lost and in my wandering I fell into a deep depression near the bank of some stream on the headwaters of Red river. Find me quick, as I am almost starved. Your brother,

Then I thought of the possibility of the message falling into another's hands, and added the following postscript:

Any one into whose hands this message may fall, will please notify Mr. Morgan county Ky. No matter what expense it may incur they will receive the price.

The message being complete, I took the flap of my shot bag and carefully folded the message in it, then I took the strap and tied the message around poor old Rover's neck, then placed him on the flat rock under which I had placed the explosives. I then lit a match and touched the fuse, telling Rover to go home. I then retired to a side chamber of the apartment to await results. Just how long I waited I am not prepared to say, but I recovered after a time and crept out to see if Rover had gone. He was gone, but whether dead or living, I had not the slightest idea. The smoke had all cleared away. I sat down and tried to content myself as best I could and to await my coming rescuers, should any come, but after two days more of miserable confinement and privation, I imagined I could hear a voice call to me. I arose and with all my feeble strength answered as best I could. Then I relapsed into a state of unconsciousness, and the next thing I knew a strong arm held me erect and was tying something about my body. The fresh air revived me, and I was taken to a house, served a good meal and returned home the next day, and how feel as well as usual.

Old Rover had never returned home, but the message fell into the hands of some one who had it printed in the Daily Courier, with an introduction stating that a poor lame dog was seen in Philadelphia with a bundle tied about his neck, which, upon examination, was found to contain the message which I had tied about his neck in my cavern home. This is the manner in which I was rescued. I have never been able to hear from poor old Rover since that time, though I offered a reward of $25.00 for his return. Tecomseh.

T. F. Stamper has been quite ill for several days.

J. C. Lykins is off on a trip to Winchester and Lexington.

Melvin Tyler has moved to town, and will live on the W. F. Elkins farm.

A few days since the little 2-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Swimm, of this place, was thought to be dying.

G. W. Robinson has purchased the mill property at this place formerly owned by G. T. Center, and will take charge of it soon.

Wm. Smith, son of S. B. Smith, has rented the Dr. Congleton place of J. N. Vaughn, who now owns it, and will cultivate it the next year.

Rev. J. W. Doane has just closed a revival meeting at Bethel with 26 additions to the church and several conversions. He was aided in the meeting by Rev. Jackson J. Tutt and others.

One of our citizens has recently received a letter from Capt. Broas, the railroad man, and he talks favorably of the railroad from the Lexington & Eastern to the Cause coal fields, if the people of Wolfe county want it and will manifest their desire for it in a business-like and substantial way. While we do not believe in a county tax for the purpose of aiding or encouraging the road, yet we do believe that the people who are able to do it ought to donate liberally, and we believe they will do it. Rather than miss the road the people along the line could well afford to give one-half the value of their lands and property to secure it. I am glad to note the fact that some men along the line are awake to their interests, and are proposing to contribute liberally. Everybody along the line of the road, who can do no more, ought to give the right of way. A railroad meeting will be held at the court house on the first Monday in next month, county court day, and every man who has his own interests, and the interests of his friends and his country at heart, should be there, and show his hand in this matter.

Success to THE HERALD and its many readers.

Morgan Miller was visiting some of his friends Sunday.

Whooping cough is raging in this vicinity at the present time.

Steve Collier has purchased a farm, situated on Laurel, of W. O. Mize.

John N. Brown and family, of Laurel, visited his father, Jas. M. Brown, of this place, Sunday.

John Brown and Nert Maloney, of Laurel, had a very nice time of hauling hay this week, as they have had plenty of snow. They will continue as buddies.

Lon Brown will go to Breathitt this week, where he has rented a large boundary of land of Uncle Tom Strong, of Frozen creek, where he will remain for some time.

Rev. J. J. Tutt preached at the schoolhouse Sunday morning. We think that he will organize a church at this place at his next meeting, the second Sunday in March.

Miss Mary Baird, of Ohio, one of the teachers that has been teaching at Campton, is now teaching at Bethel. We hope that she will have a prosperous school, and we think it will be a success.

There was quite a crowd passed down and back by here Wednesday last, both men and women, and we cannot account for their rude conduct, unless it be that too much whiskey inflated their hides and loosened their tongues.

S. S. Shackelford, of Devil's creek, will move to his father-in-law's, T. K. Tutt, sr., in a short time, and will crop there this year. We think that all Sherman now lacks to make his home happy is weekly visits of THE HERALD.

While some of our young men were visiting one of our neighbors one night last week, and all enjoying themselves hugely, they were unceremoniously disturbed. Now, boys, if each of you will subscribe for THE HERALD I will not tell the joke. HYPHEN.

KILLED BY THE TRAIN.

The Disinherited Daughter of a Blue Grass Baron.

The girl who was found horribly mangled on the Chesapeake & Ohio road, was identified today as Mrs. J. A. Shepherd, the young wife of a slain Hinton photographer. The identification of the body developed an ideal romance of the blue grass, the features of which are based on real facts. Not alone was the affair tinged in romance, for the scene enacted when the husband discovered that the mangled and disfigured woman was his wife, was dramatic in the extreme. Just before Coroner Malloy began the inquest over the body of the girl, James A. Shepherd appeared at the morgue and requested that he be allowed the privilege of inspecting the remains. When the sheet covering the girl was lifted, Shepherd uttered a heartrending cry, and said in a broken voice that it was his wife. When Shepherd recovered his composure he was placed on the witness stand.

He stated that on Sunday his wife left home to call on a neighbor. She did not return, and he retired without her, supposing that she had remained over night with friends. On Monday she did not return, and he was still not alarmed, as he thought probably that she was at her brother's.

He learned of the finding of the body of the girl today, and at once went to the morgue to find that it was his wife. His relations with Mrs. Shepherd, he said, were pleasant, and there could have been no cause for suicide.

Mrs. Shepherd is the daughter of Rankin Clemmons, one of the wealthiest men in the blue grass, possessing 2,000 acres of blue grass land and nearly $100,000 out at interest. When Mrs. Shepherd was very young she became infatuated with Shepherd, who was in her father's employ. Contrary to his wishes she married her lover in this city two years ago. When Clemmons heard of the marriage he disinherited the girl, and swore he would never speak to her again. Shepherd became a traveling photographer, and after doing business in Indiana and Illinois he located in Cincinnati for a time. He then came here, and has lived almost as a pauper. Word was sent to her father this evening of the death of his daughter. The rich father's heart did not soften toward his disinherited daughter even after her death. He curtly informed the messenger that he would have nothing to do with the body, and refused to give a dollar towards burying it.

He stated that his son Robert might do as he pleased, but he would not bother himself. Shepherd is almost a pauper, and unless Robert Clemmons opens his purse it is probable that the girl of the rich baron of the soil will be interred through charity.

The jury, after hearing all the evidence in the case, brought in the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that the body before us is that of Mrs. J. A. Shepherd, who came to her death by being foully dealt with, and then placed on the C. & O. tracks to obliterate the deed."

Shepherd is almost insane with grief. He states that his wife was in poor health, and it was probable that while in a demented state she wandered upon the C. & O. track, and was murdered by ruffians. After the inquest it was found that one of the men was a conductor on the C. & O. railroad. Coroner Malloy was very wrathful when he heard of this—Lexington ex. Louisville Commercial, 6th inst.

Now Is the Time.

The benefit to be derived from a good medicine in early spring is undoubted, but many people neglect taking any until the approach of warmer weather, when they will like a tender flower in the hot sun. Something must be done to purify the blood, overcome that tired feeling and give necessary strength. Vacation is earnestly longed for, but many weeks, perhaps months, must elapse before rest can be indulged in. To impart strength, and to give a feeling of health and vigor throughout the system, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration incident upon change of season, eliminate or life, and while it tones and renovates the system it purifies and restores the blood.

The Mt. Sterling Lynching.

If the recent earnest attempt in Memphis to convict the cowardly lynchers of the six negroes who were brutally murdered while in charge of the officers of the law proved a failure, what can the people of Kentucky base any hope upon for the conviction and punishment of the lynchers of Thomas Blair at Mt. Sterling?

In the prosecution at Memphis the officers of the law had an aroused and united public sentiment to aid them in bringing the murderers to justice, and this feeling was so strong that a handsome fund was raised by public meetings to aid the attorney-general in the prosecution, and still it failed. What can poor Mt. Sterling hope to do with her own people divided and but half-hearted encouragement given to the officers of the law, to whom is intrusted the duty of bringing the culprits to justice? We speak of our progress as a part of the new south, but, until public sentiment undergoes a radical change, we will continue to furnish pretext for partisan organs of the north to bring charges of lawlessness against us which will hurt none the less when we feel in our own consciousness that they are too sadly true.

If the good citizens of Mt. Sterling will awake to the real seriousness of the situation, and will lend their warm support to the officers of the law, whether they are negroes or that class or not, they will deserve the cordial thanks of the entire state, and whether the effort to convict the lynchers is successful or not, the earnest effort to bring them to justice will have a most salutary effect, which will be felt for years to come in its restraining influence over those who might be tempted to take part in lynching in the future. Every patriotic citizen of Mt. Sterling should support Judge Cooper in his fearless attempt to bring the lynchers of Thomas Blair to punishment.—Press-Transcript.

Don't Stop Tobacco.

The tobacco habit grows on a man until his nervous system is seriously affected, impairing comfort, health and happiness. To quit suddenly is too severe a shock to the system, so, tobacco, to an inveterate user, becomes a stimulant that his system continually craves. Baco-Curo is a scientific cure for the tobacco habit in all its forms, carefully compounded after the formula of an eminent Berlin physician who has used it in his private practice since 1872 without a failure, purely vegetable and guaranteed perfectly harmless. You can use all the tobacco you want while taking Baco-Curo—it will notify you when to stop. We give a written guarantee to permanently cure any case with three boxes, or refund the money with 10 per cent. interest. Baco-Curo is not a substitute, but a scientific cure, that cures without the aid of will power and with no inconvenience. It leaves the system as pure and free from nicotine as the day when you took your first chew or smoke. Sold by all druggists, with our iron-lid guarantee, at $1.00 per box, three boxes (30-day's treatment) $2.50, or sent direct upon receipt of price. A Big Suit.

One Sunday afternoon in the late part of August, 1891, while a K. C. train was being made up in the yards of this city, C. H. James, a young brakeman, was caught between the humpers of two cars, and the life was crushed out of him. The coroner's jury found out but little, and the accident passed from the minds of most people. It is brought to mind again by a suit filed in the circuit court recently by Mrs. Sadie McGregor, of Kansas City, Mo., for $20,000 damages for death of the brakeman. It seems that the real name of the man was McGregor, and that he was her son. He had become involved in some way with a woman, and had assumed the name of James, which he bore at the time of his death. The case will not be tried at this term of the court, as the papers were not served on the railroad officials in time.—Winchester Democrat.

FREE COINAGE OF SILVER.

The free and unlimited coinage of silver, the product of American mines, at the old ratio of 16 of silver to 1 of gold, is the only solution of and remedy for the disturbed and unsatisfactory condition of trade, manufacture and general business of the country.

The surreptitious act of 1873, divorcing silver and gold in our monetary system, was a crime of untold magnitude. It was the rankest kind of class legislation in favor of the wealthy against the producers of wealth, and hostile to the prosperity of the United States. It was an act of treason because done at the instance of a European syndicate and for bribe money, "giving aid and comfort to our country's enemies." To shield the guilty parties, the well authenticated facts, often published, have been vigorously denied.

The Enquirer will continue to expose this unpardonable crime until right and justice are done the people by the full restoration of silver to its old companionship with gold. We need the assistance of the people in disseminating the truth, to which end we invite all in your selection of papers for the coming season to include the Enquirer, that costs only $1.00 a year. SPENCER COOPER, : : : Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.

THURSDAY, February 14, 1895.

By reference to our Campton correspondence it will be seen that a railroad meeting has been called at Campton for next county court day, Monday, March 4. Every man who is truly interested in the welfare and upbuilding of Wolfe county's material interests should be on hand on that occasion and be prepared to offer substantial aid to the enterprise. Let every man feel that it is important for him to do what he can, and give as liberally as his circumstances will allow. Donations can be made in sums of $25 and upwards, and by this means we can show to the company that we are interested in the enterprise, and will welcome the construction of a railroad connection with the Lexington and Eastern with a whole-heartedness. Unless we do this we cannot hope to secure the railroad, and if we fail now we are forever lost to quick transportation for our products. The writer can see no possible hope for a railroad through Wolfe county if we fail to secure this one, and we beg that every man will be prepared on that occasion to do all he can. In this connection it has been suggested that a meeting of those friendly to the enterprise be called for Campton and Hazel Green, respectively, on Saturday, the 24th inst., at 2 o'clock p. m., and at each of these meetings a committee be appointed to secure right of way, so that at the meeting on county court day we may show the faith that is in us by our efforts. A committee from the Hazel Green meeting will undertake the securing of the right of way and all possible aid between Stillwater and the Caney coal fields, and the Campton committee can likewise secure right of way, aid, etc., between Stillwater and the mouth of Mill creek, over the old Kentucky Union survey from Mill creek to Campton, and thence to Stillwater by the most probable route. These papers should be signed up by the individuals owning the land, and each include any additional aid in the way of donations of money, ties, timber, stone, etc. By taking this course we can at the Campton meeting, on court day, discuss our prospects for a railroad in an intelligent manner, and thus save all guess-work and much unnecessary delay. Now is the time to work if we hope to win, and every citizen should be interested sufficiently to feel that he is the man upon whom the whole thing devolves, and then do his utmost to bring success. Every man will alike share the honor of the work, and surely none could have a prouder record than that he helped secure this railroad.

Let every man in the county talk up the railroad, as it would be the grandest thing for our county imaginable. The fact that your paper made a good living and accumulated a large boundary of land is no argument against it. By reason of his accumulated acres you are land-poor today because this same land does not bring you a return sufficient to justify you in the outlay of taxes you have to pay. But with a railroad every acre of your estate could be turned to advantage, and where the honored sire was wont to slowly gather dimes the hustling son could get collars.

The editor of this paper was in Winchester recently and saw turkeys selling there for $1.50 and $2 that could be bought here for 50 to 75¢. With a railroad through our county to the Lexington and Eastern these better prices would obtain here. We verily believe that the increased price of poultry and eggs alone would more than compensate the people of Wolfe county for all they are asked to contribute to the construction of the proposed road.

The people of Winchester are very much enthused over the prospect of a railroad opening up this section, and we believe we can rely upon that city for substantial aid in securing the road if we will do our part. But unless we do what we can we do not deserve the assistance of any one, and every man in the county should bear this fact in mind.

Republican Inconsistency.

Spencer Cooper has a handsome new head—on his paper—THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD. It adds much to the appearance of this always well-printed journal. The old head Spencer wears himself cannot be improved upon.—Mt. Sterling Gazette, Rep.

THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD HAS a new head. (A grand improvement on the old one.) The editor, Spencer Cooper, needs a new head. It should be a very great improvement on the old one.—Winchester Sun, Rep.

"Blurt" Talks Railroad, Etc.

EZEL, Ky., Feb. 12, 1895. I hope that the people of Wolfe county will not neglect the present opportunity of getting a railroad. Don't do like the intelligent (?) people of Morgan county have done, who mistook their ignorance for wisdom. Last fall when the railroad question was before us, a large number of our people acted as though Solomon had risen from the dead, and had been blowing his breath in their faces. But now they realize that they have been blowing the gas of ignorance into the face of prosperity. If any of you people think that "the road will be built just as quick without help as with it," you just step over into Morgan and ask our people what they think about it. If Morgan cannot get the line of road, we want you to get it. Every citizen in the country will admit that Eastern Kentucky cannot be developed without railroads, and if the present generation expect to enjoy those blessings the time to act is when we have a proposition submitted to us by a company that is ready to construct the road.

All the warmth of clothes and fire was not sufficient for Boon McGuire. And as the winter colder grew His bed was found containing two.

The name of the bride was Anna Vest—(Both families being the very best.) May there no troubles to them betide, And the name McGuire be multiplied.

J. B. Cecil came near losing his house by fire last week. The family were meeting at this place, and when they returned home they found the house full of smoke and a large portion of the floor burned away. Their timely return saved their beautiful residence.

BLURT.

In a recent editorial, the Salem, Oregon, Independent says: "Time and again have we seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy tried and never without the most satisfactory results. Whenever we see a person afflicted with hoarseness, with a cough or cold, we invariably advise them to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy; and when they do, they never regret it. It always does the work, and does it well." For sale by John M. Rose.

THE HERALD.

FOR RAILROAD COMMISSIONER.
We are authorized to announce JOHN C. WOOD, of Mount Vernon county, as a candidate for the office of Railroad Commissioner in this, the Third district, subject to the action of the Republican party.

Prayer meeting at the Methodist church to-night at 6 o'clock.

Harve Nickell, who has been quite sick for several days, is out again.

Tom Lee and Jimmie Day will leave for the wild and woolly west on the 22d.

J. Taylor Day left Monday for Winchester and other points on a business trip.

There was no mail to this place from either Rothwell or West Liberty on Friday last.

John Robinson has moved into the parsonage property recently vacated by Dave James.

Elder Howard writes that he has had 35 additions since his meeting commenced at Soldier, in Carter county.

The infant child of T. J. Swimm and wife, and an infant of Elijah Pelfrey and wife, of Campton, died last Monday.

Thomas Pelfrey will please accept our thanks for a "possum," which was sent us in good shape a few days since.

Mike O'Hair, who lives on Laurel, and on the prospective route of the railroad, gave us will give right of way over his lands.

Keep your blood pure and healthy and you will not have rheumatism. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives the blood vitality and richness.

We understand that Nowt Swango, of Charleston, Ill., offers $20 a month for farm hands. Charleston enjoys railroads and hence the farmers are able to pay good prices for help.

George R. Snyder, with J. S. Phelps & Co., of the Planter, Louisville, will please accept our thanks for a very handsome memorandum and bill-book combined.

J. M. Havens, our popular young jeweler, will attend court at Owensville Monday to give a thing-blo-fall of evidence in a fish case. He will have Moore to say about it on his return.

Abner Moore, of Stillwater, who bought the Lee Patrick property, near Hazel Green, on Tuesday moved from Stillwater to the property of Mrs. Nannie Kash, just below Hazel Green.

R. W. Smith, representing the Carter Dry Goods Co., of Louisville, was a guest of the Day house over Sunday. See his card in this paper, and when in need of anything in his line write him.

Sheriff Wilson tells us that he was at Walnut Grove a few days since, and the people there are very much pleased with the prospect of a railroad through our county to the Lexington and Eastern.

Henry Pieratt has our thanks for some brains, but any one who knows Henry will agree with us that he could himself have utilized them to advantage. They were from a fine beef he killed on Wednesday—indeed the finest beef that has been slaughtered here for many months.

During this snow nearly everybody goes on runners, when they ride. The hauling is done on sleds, and some are converted into pleasure vehicles. David James and his family were moved to the station on a large sled, and Mr. Bartley, of Morgan county, hauled five barrels of coal oil from the station here on a sled.

Logan Hammond, who has just returned from Meigs county, tells us that Guy Bandy, of Hagar, complains of not getting THE HERALD. As the paper is mailed regularly every Thursday at this office, the fault is with the postmasters along the route, and we hope they will be more careful. Mr. Hammond also informs us that the trial of Fletcher, charged with murder, was continued till next term.

What Can Be Done.

As an instance of what a man can do with railroad facilities, we mention the case of Fayette James. A few years since he put everything he had into money and moved into a part of T-xas remote from railroads, where he spent every cent and did not earn anything. Two years ago he borrowed $100 and moved to Illinois, renting a farm right at the railroad. Now he has six head of good horses, two cows, 20 head of hogs, enough corn and provision for a year, has paid the $100 and has money in his pocket. A railroad would make Wolfe county superior to any county in Illinois, because we have more to bring money, and now we have a chance to get the road. Will you help?

The Sick List.

Dr. John A. Taulbee reports the following patients under his treatment: Two children of John Davis, Frank Childron, improving; Mrs. Jas. Elkins and babe, Mrs. Jeffie Rose, fever; Squire Fallon, (son of Logan's), very low; Mrs. Lowe, pleuradonia; Mrs. Pelfrey, fever; Miss Belle Taylor, Ed Napier, James Gilly, influenza; Mrs. Ed Cecil, improving; Miles Fallon's boy; Hessel Sally, homiopia, improving; Mrs. James Sebastian, convalescent; Nannie Sample, acute tonsillitis; also a dozen or more afflicted with chronic troubles.

A Recommendation from Los Angeles. 632 Castelar St., Los Angeles, Cal.—After having suffered for a long time from acute rheumatism without obtaining relief, I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and was almost immediately relieved. I highly recommend this as the best medicine known.

Union Sunday School.

The Sabbath-school organized at the Methodist church on Sunday last under very promising auspices with an enrollment of 41 members. The officers and teachers chosen were: N. C. Waddill, superintendent; Miss Laura Rawlings, assistant; M. L. C. Thompson, secretary and treasurer; Miss Florence Quicksall, assistant. Teachers—Class No. 1, Miss Mattie Quicksall; No. 2, Dr. John A. Taulbee; No. 3, Miss Florence Quicksall; No. 4, Miss Laura Rawlings.

Common Sense.

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. As catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good. The common sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's PILLS cures constipation by restoring peristaltic action to the alimentary canal.

More Enterprise.

John H. Pieratt, the affable landlord of days ago, showed us the plans for a new hotel a few days since, and should the railroad prove a reality he will erect a handsome hotel edifice on his corner lot where the old Pieratt hotel stood. John understands the hotel business from a to z, and should he go into it again, the commercial tourists all over the country will flock to his hostelry to enjoy his rich fund of anecdotes.

Go to Illinois.

David B. James and family left here Monday morning for Fair Grange, Ill., where they will make their future home. Dave drilled his children and called the roll every day for several days prior to his departure, to make sure that none got away, and with so large a family to till the soil, he ought soon to make a fortune in that state, where railroads abound.

On a Cutter.

The editor and his better enjoyed a sleigh ride Monday evening. John H. Pieratt, the lively man, kindly banded us his cutter, a home-made one, and we hitched our own proud pegasus, "Bully," into the shafts, and for an hour sped through the snow along the Broadway boulevard.

Elder J. T. Pieratt left Tuesday morning for Zachariah, on the border of Lee and Wolfe counties, where he began a series of meetings on Tuesday evening.

ACADEMY NOTES.

S. M. Nickell was in West Liberty on Wednesday.

W. L. Hammond spent two days at his home in Magoffin county this week.

N. C. Congleton was called home on Monday to see his mother, who is again very sick.

Miles Nickell, of Daysboro, came down with and enrolled his son, Benford, last Monday.

Mrs. Amyx, of Daysboro, came down Tuesday and arranged to enroll her daughter next Monday.

J. W. Taubee, who is teaching in Frenchburg, writes under date of the 11th inst., that his daughter Lula will enroll in a few days.

W. A. Jones, of Clarke county, and Miss Bonnie Kash, of Hazel Green, both former pupils of the academy, were married at Frenchburg on Tuesday.

New matriculates this week are: Benford Nickell, Daysboro; Woodson Little and C. Linden, Gilmore; Anna E. Pieratt, Ezell; Curtis Pieratt, town, Mrs. N. Kash, county.

The junior division of the Haut of Bon society gave a well prepared program on Tuesday morning. The societies now vie with each other, and thus quite an interest has been awakened.

Services at the Christian church next Sunday at 11 a. m. Subject: "Is the Christian Church Persecuted?" Sunday-school at the same place at 9:30 a. m. The attendance at Sunday-school last Sunday morning was nearly 80.

It has been reported that there has been a great deal of fever among the pupils of the academy. There has not been one case of fever this winter, and only one pupil has been sick, viz. Lee McCann, who had an attack of pneumonia, brought on by exposure. The friends of the school will please correct this false impression that has been circulated, as it might keep pupils from entering the academy this session. Neighborhood papers might also mention this.

ACADEMITE.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Dream City.
We desire to again call attention to our very liberal subscription of our outlined last week. That it is most acceptable is proved by the fact that we have already received numerous responses, and those who have in possession the handsome volume of sixty-four World's Fair views are most enthusiastic in its praise. The work is issued in the highest style of art, with an elaborate stiff cover in gold and colors, and the engravings are printed on highly enameled paper. The pictures are 8x10 inches, and the pages 11x14 inches in size, and the volume is an ornament to any home. We send it free, postage paid, to every new subscriber; to any old subscriber who renews for one year and to any person, subscriber or non-subscriber, who sends us one new subscriber, the remittance for one year's subscription to be forwarded in each case.

Col. John P. Salyer.

John L. Phillips, writing from London, Ky., to the Louisville Times, suggests the name of Col. John P. Salyer, of West Liberty, as suitable gubernatorial timber, and says the mountains are full of good and true Democrats who are clamoring for Col. Salyer for governor. If the gallant colonel should decide to cast his fortunes in a fight for the Democratic nomination for governor, he would receive the support of thousands of blue grass as well as mountain Democrats, and should he be nominated and elected, he would make the state a faithful, conscientious and able chief executive.

Salesmen Wanted.

Born a Genius

Disease Threatens to Cut Short a Noble Career

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Good Health.

Little May Bentley is an accomplished educationist and natural born speaker of only 12 years of age. She is the only child temperance lecturer before the public. Her genius, however, did not exempt her from an attack of a disease of the blood. Her own words best tell the story: "O. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'I heartily join with the many thousands that are recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had been troubled from infancy with gatherings in my head. I was compelled to leave school upon the doctor's advice. I thought it was the only thing to save my life, but I

Continued to Grow Worse. I was persuaded finally by a friend to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The use of one bottle acted effectively upon the blood and I began to improve. After the use of three bottles the gathering ceased and I am cured of my former trouble. I owe my life and will always remain a true friend to Hood's Sarsaparilla.'
